Foreword

Of what consequence is a foreword? In the end it is the contents of this annual that will be noted and remembered. The thing that is of greatest importance is the volume of life that lies between these covers. If we put into this annual all that is vital in our high school, its very soul; and if that soul and our endeavor be great enough, then we can be justly proud of our annual and of our school.

Mr. H. G. Shadle

Coach

Rah, Rah, Rah -- Hornets

The curtain has fallen on another exciting year of the Darlington Hornet's football season.

Under the rugged coaching of Homer G. Shadle, the boys have put in a fairly successful year of one of the best loved sports of our time. The boys were in good condition, and they fought hard to make this year a successful one. We want to thank the "Hornets" of '55 for the many exciting evenings we shared with them.

Snow-Queen

One of our highlights during the Yuletide Season is the Christmas formal. Here we choose a Snow-Queen and her attendants to reign over the dance. Chosen as this year's queen was our petite "Norma Sienerth". Added to her glamour are her attendants Lois Elder and Jane Haney.

CLASSES...

Mr. Michael Super

SUPERVISING PRINCIPAL

The requirements of a high school supervising principal are as numerous as they are varied. Not only must he be the leader of the school, but he must devote much of his time to the everyday problems. The supervision requires sincerity, knowledge and determination. We are indeed fortunate to have Mr. Super as our supervising principal for he has done much to advance our high school.

ASSISTANT PRINCIPAL

One of our most friendly members of the faculty is our Assistant Principal, Mr. Krepps. Although his time must be divided between his duties as a teacher and assistant principal, he is never too busy to engage in a pleasant conversation to help our students with their problems.

Mr. Charles Krepps

Mrs. Leona Carlisle

SECRETARY

Our new efficient, capable secretary does her work quickly and quietly, saving our principal many steps and gray hairs. Her job, never an easy one, is often complicated by the antics of the student body.

Don't let us bother you too much though, Mrs. Carlisle, we all think you're great!

SENIORS...

Farewell

Although the closing of the school year is greeted by most of us with great joy, there is a touch of sorrow too. The sorrow that accompanies the parting of friends is felt keenly as we see this year's graduates walk, perhaps for the last time, through the doors of our beloved school.

To you who have been examples to us through-out our school years, we extend our fond farewells and best wishes for your success in whatever walk of life you choose to enter. We hope that we can follow worthily in your footsteps as Seniors of Darlington High.

Mrs. McCown, R. N., our competent school nurse, did her studying at the Providence Hospital.

She is the one that helps us with our medical distresses. Even though she is swamped with work, Mrs. McCown is always cheerful and gay with a smile for everyone.

We appreciate what she does for us. Thanks from all of us!
